

Individual project

Part I: Topic Selection and Bibliography

(Due: Tuesday, October 7, 2014)

The main goal of this assignment is to strengthen your skills as an independent researcher.

Specifically, the assignment will help you develop your ability to:

- define a research topic from a broad subject
- identify different sources of information and choose the most appropriate for the topic
- create a bibliography using a standard style (such as MLA or APA)

Requirements

The assignment consists of a 1-page document which includes:

- the research topic you've selected and your motivation for selecting the topic, and
- a bibliography with 5 appropriate sources for your topic

Formatting

- Main headings: CENTRED and BOLD (e.g. assignment title, your name)
- Sub-headings: LEFT-JUSTIFIED and BOLD (e.g. Topic Selection and Motivation, Bibliography)
- Bibliography and any in-text citations: must use a standard form/style (such as MLA or APA- choose a style and use it consistently)
- Throughout: 1" Margins; Times Roman, 12 point font; Line spacing at 1.5

Here are some examples of broad subject ideas (taken from the main course questions presented in Class 1) to guide your research and selection:

1. Language diversity (bilingualism, multilingualism)
2. Linguistic unity and the benefits of monolingualism
3. The confusion of tongues in contemporary novels (e.g. Umberto Eco, The name of the rose)
4. The linguistic sign: nature vs. convention
5. Linguistics and biology: biological evidence supporting/rejecting the monogenetic hypothesis
6. Linguistics and archeology: evidence supporting the existence of proto-languages.
7. Languages of commerce (lingua franca; creoles)
8. Linguistic regularities and anomalies (exceptions and variation).
